Dr. Hill is well known throughout the industry as an expert on wellness and essential oils. As a licensed practitioner of chiropractic medicine and the former administrator of a large health clinic, Dr. Hill managed over forty professionals for several years, treating hundreds of patients in the process. For the past three years, he and his team have developed educational seminars used by tens of thousands seeking to learn about essential oils and personal wellness. Dr. Hill has authored and published a number of very successful books, brochures, and pamphlets. Dr. Hill's ability to communicate effectively with other medical professionals and his innate ability to communicate with the mainstream public regarding health issues, providing solutions in a language they can understand makes him an immediate favorite with all who know him.

As a former CEO of a large global direct selling entity with more than 500,000 independent distributors and 700 employees operating in more than 30 markets, Eric Larsen knows direct selling. Upon becoming an independent distributor earlier this year, Eric partnered with Justin Harrison, doTERRA's founding distributor, to form a master distributorship for the company as it prepares for tremendous domestic and international growth. Eric Larsen has already been instrumental in dōTERRA's international expansion strategy. He has travelled the world sharing his thoughts on why now is the time to join dōTERRA. Eric said, "I am convinced that doTERRA is poised to be one of the great ones. I've never witnessed a company accomplish what doTERRA has achieved in its first three years. doTERRA's unique products, experienced management team and energetic young sales force combine to make it the preeminent opportunity of our time."
